Hello Everyone,

In 2004, my family and I moved to Bangkok, Thailand. Since we had two small children and I was a health-conscious person, we were quite concerned about finding a pediatrician, who would take care of our our youngsters. Several people told us not to worry about it because medical care in Thailand was top-notch; hospitals that would rather be a five-star hotels, US-trained doctors who charges less than what you pay for a decent meal in San Francisco, among other things we've been told.

The good news is most of these are true. The facilities are second-to-none. Services are world class.

Unfortunately, however, the most important aspect in medical care, the quality of care, is severely lacking. We saw half a dozen different pediatricians at two top private hospitals during our two-year stay in Bangkok. A few of them were highly recommended by our Thai friends. We were quite disappointed as none of them met our expectation.

I will write more in my blogs and reviews the circumstances where I felt the care received was inadequate. But now let me tell you about this site.

I created MyThaiDoctors.com to help others finding quality doctors. This is a place where you can share your opinions on your doctors, positive and negative. Please help others by spreading your words!

I tried my best to make the site as easy to use as possible. You don't even have to register as a user if you don't want to. The site allows reviews posted by anyone. However, any reviews submitted by an un-registered user will not be published right away.

Sincerely,

Sam
